
ALL THINGS TO ALL PEOPLE
SCRIPT RELEASE

RANDALL AND THE BLINDING SPOTLIGHT

© ALL THINGS TO ALL PEOPLE

Synopsis: Randall is a typical teenager. He's been told that if he shows up on stage, he'll find the love of his life. Instead, he finds himself being grilled by an unseen voice about the nature of love. We watch Randall as he plays out scenes with his mother, his best friend, and a girl he likes. The voice is constantly quizzing Randall about his relationships with each of these people and about what he means when he says he "loves" them. This drama is a fun investigation into the different expressions of love.

Scripture Reference(s): 1 John 4:7-12

Topic(s): Communication, Community, Dating, Family, Friendship, Love, Loving Others, Relationships, Romance

Characters

Randall
Voice
Mother
April
Tucker

Props

None

Costumes

Everyday attire

Director's Note: The Voice can be performed live or as a recording, though through experience it seems to work better live.

Running Time: 15-18 minutes

Black Stage. RANDALL wanders out in the darkness.

RANDALL: Hello? Is anybody here? I was told that if I showed up at this time I'd find...

Blinding spotlight interrupts RANDALL.

RANDALL: Oh, that's bright. Is someone there? Hello?

VOICE: Meet Randall.

RANDALL: (Looks around for "Randall") Uh... my name is Austin.

VOICE: No. It's Randall. Austin is your middle name.

RANDALL: But only my mom calls me Randall.

VOICE: (Clears throat) Randall is a typical teenager.

RANDALL: Fine. I'm Randall, a typical teenager.

VOICE: He is sixteen.

RANDALL: Yeah.

VOICE: He's six feet tall.

RANDALL: Sure.

VOICE: He weighs one hundred ninety... Turn to the side please.

RANDALL turns to the side while still looking at the light.

VOICE: Two hundred. He weighs two hundred pounds.

RANDALL: Hey!

VOICE: He has mild to moderate acne.

RANDALL: (Rubbing his palms on his pants) What? Come on.

VOICE: And his palms sweat and his voice cracks when he is nervous.

RANDALL: (Voice cracking) They do not.

VOICE: Yes, they do. Randall has come here today looking for something.